

The Alaska USA Privacy Pledge

Alaska USA will never sell its member or client lists or nonpublic personal information to any third party.

What nonpublic personal information does Alaska USA collect?

- Information received from you on applications or other forms.
- Information about your transactions with Alaska USA, its affiliates, or others.
- Information received from credit reporting agencies.
- Information obtained when verifying information provided by you on applications or other forms, such as from current or past employers, other financial institutions where you conduct financial transactions, and other sources listed on applications.

Employee access to information

The only Alaska USA employees who have access to nonpublic personal information are those employees who need that information in order to administer accounts and transactions. Alaska USA maintains physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with federal regulations to guard nonpublic personal information about its members and clients.

Disclosure of information

Alaska USA may disclose all of the information it collects, as previously described:

- to subsidiaries, affiliates, and other companies that perform marketing or other services on its behalf;
- to other financial institutions with whom it has marketing or service agreements; and
- as otherwise permitted or required by law.

These subsidiaries, affiliates, and companies that assist Alaska USA in providing services will be given only the information they need in order to provide the service, and must agree to protect confidential information.

Alaska USA will never sell its member or client lists or nonpublic personal information to any third party. If your relationship with Alaska USA ends, Alaska USA will not share information, except as permitted or required by law.
